Schedule of Events*

The Organizational Studies summer session is an intense, challenging, and fun four weeks. As many as 90 different professionals - primarily Denison graduates - facilitate the daily sessions. They represent an extensive range of organizational specializations, and share their insights in formats ranging from workshops to hands-on exercises to simulations. Topics include finance and investment, organizational change and development, marketing and advertising, entrepreneurship, leadership and communication in organizations, organizational ethics, and the role of personal values in career development. Students make formal presentations as organizational consultants and travel to various cities to meet on-site with experts in their fields. This year, travel includes trips to Chicago and New York City for meetings with alumni and friends of Denison in both for-profit and not-for-profit settings.

Because of his outstanding contributions to the OS program, Brandon was selected to be Assistant to the Director. A communication major and psychology minor, Brandon was a four-year starter on the Big Red football team at wide receiver, as well as president of his fraternity. He has accepted a position in his hometown with the Cincinnati office of Aerotek, Inc., which is the nation's largest recruiting and headhunting firm.
